DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 61-95, 100, drawn to monoclonal antibody, classified in class 530, subclass 388.4.
- II. Claims 96-99, drawn to polynucleotide encoding an antibody, vector, and cell, classified in class 435, subclass 320.1.

2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related in that Invention I is directed to monoclonal antibody and Invention II is drawn to a polynucleotide encoding an antibody, vector, and cell. The related inventions are distinct if the (1) the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect; (2) the inventions do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; and (3) the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants. See MPEP § 806.05(j). In the instant case, Invention I and II are structurally different products and can be produced by different methods. The nucleic acid of Invention II is not required to produce a monoclonal antibody of Invention I. The monoclonal antibodies can be produced by fusion technology of Epstein barr virus immunization. For example, the monoclonal antibody is a purified antibody that is derived from only one clone of cells and recognizes only one antigen and is produced by laboratory cultures of a single cell line. A polynucleotide is a condensation polymer formed by the linking of nucleotides and can be used to encode a protein. A vector is a self-replicating DNA molecule that transfers a DNA segment between host cells. A cell is the smallest structural unit of living organisms that is able to grow and reproduce independently. Furthermore, the inventions as claimed do not encompass overlapping subject matter and there is nothing of record to show them to be obvious variants.

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103 (a) of the other invention.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
